"Ending abortion and opposing the LGBT ideology are paramount for a more successful and just society" - Dylan Green

Introduction

This is the ballad of one Dylan Green.

We will begin with the first pawprints. This is what inspired the second.

We will then proceed with the second pawprints. This is what inspired the authors - for surely this Dylan had more backstory. We could not help ourselves but to investigate.

From there, we shall follow the journey of discovery we embarked on, culminating in - as the youth say - "The Receipts".

If you wish, you can follow our path and validate the receipts. (For without validation, what credibility can receipts claim?)

In the end, you shall have the information needed to form your own opinion on your fellow RIT student.

From here on out, we'll provide only limited commentary. We'll primarily let Dylan do the talking.

As the old saying goes:

"Give 'em enough rope, and they'll likely hang themselves"

The First Pawprints Petition

https://pawprints.rit.edu/?p=3217

Remove the Newman Center Vice-President

Petition by Angeline Hamele

Created by Angeline Hamele on September 23, 2021

The current vice-president, Dylan Green, is a notorious antisemite and homophobe who's been banned from several RIT-related online spaces for being disrespectful and expressing their views on Jewish people and members of the LGBTQ+ community. The Spirituality and Religious center should not be a place where we hold these views, especially when it is supposed to be a welcoming place for ALL students.

The Second Pawprints Petition

https://pawprints.rit.edu/?p=3226

Remove the RIT pagans treasurer

Petition by Dylan Green

Created by Dylan Green on October 01, 2021

The current treasurer, Angeline Hamele, is a notorious anticatholic and heterophobe who's been banned from several RIT-related real-life spaces for being disrespectful and expressing their views on Catholic people and members of the community of those promoting traditional sexuality. The Spirituality and Religious center should not be a place where we hold these views, especially when it is supposed to be a welcoming place for ALL students.

The similarity in wording and retalitory nature of this petition inspired us to dig deeper.

The Highlight Reel

Ending abortion and opposing the LGBT ideology are paramount for a more successful and just society. The world is not all about what you want. Sometimes we need to understand that we cannot have our cake and eat it too, especially when it's literally sending whole families to their demise. I learned that a long time ago.

I understand the trouble it must be to go through this. Everyone on Earth has issues we need to understand and confront in order to return to the faith, but good Christians will not be upset with you because you have this problem. They will be upset with you only when you take pride in it and let it define you. The sin is not the temptation. I've done many bad things in life, but I am doing my best to learn from them and end any engagements with them going forward. This should apply equally to those who engage in LGBT ideologies. If you express interest in coming home and do your best to end this habit, I am certain you will be welcomed with open arms. But so long as you cling to this ideology, it will hold you back. We don't do this because we don't like you. Quite the opposite. It is to avoid future suffering in life long-term. I hope you understand.

I do wonder sometimes why your brand of hatred is so acceptable, but my concern of the degenerative nature of certain expressions of sexuality is so bad? I'd think the one blasting insults and taunts would be the bad one. I'm just debating in good faith whether this is actually "uplifting". I and MANY others have pointed out how this sub is turning into an LGBT pride circlejerk and is driving people away.

1.) If you're destroying, stunting, replacing, or causing pain to your body in any way because of one's psychology, it's mutilation. Doesn't matter who is doing it to whom.

2.) I prefer not to lie when I talk to or about people.

I was even told by friends who used to be afflicted by this stuff that their behavior was linked to the culture and to pre-existing health issues they had.

/r/worldnews /u/Dylanrules22

What I've read of this so far dictates that the only way to prevent those people from causing themselves harm is to essentially force everyone to play pretend and allow them to mutilate themselves instead. I don't see that as helpful in the slightest. My state just banned all forms of therapy designed by experts to help alleviate these troubles, and demanded they enable it instead. I don't know about you, but we don't treat any psychological problems that way. Things like autism, schizophrenia, extreme anxiety don't get solved by pretending everything they believe to be true is the case, and that everything they want to happen should go through.

Let's look at that last one in context:

- 1. They aren't "mutilating" themselves. Why do you all use this term? Going in for a safe and approved procedure is not "mutilating" yourself. It shows your bias against transgender people.
- 2. You act like it's the hardest thing in the world to call a transgender woman she/her and view her as a woman, and to call a transgender man he/him and treat him as a man. It's really not.

This is where the issue lies. I may not know you, but if you are "trans", you are not who you have been conditioned to believe. "trans" literally means "opposite", as in opposite of who you REALLY are. Knowing the will of God is difficult, but what we do know is that we all have issues. For example, folks like me who were born autistic were probably not "intentionally" made, as autism can cause temptations that lead us astray. But I don't let that define who I am, and I don't take pride in the bad things it has partially helped lead me to engage in. I don't have the authority to go up to God and tell him "I have autistic tendencies, so I shouldn't be made to understand social cues so I can communicate nicely and be a decent man, because I developed that way". None of us can tell God what to do or say we don't have to follow His guidelines because they are difficult. Please understand this. It's tough to leave this frame of mind, but once you do it is very relieving.

Could you please provide a source for that 1 in 4? I mean, the Nazis killed 12 million of their own people in less than 12 years years because they were told Jews were not people and that they were getting in their way. There have been over 60 million killed by abortion in the USA over the past 50 years because we are told our own children are not human. This isn't something to be proud of. There are SO MANY parallels it's TERRIFYING to live in this country knowing that if we as people are not seen as useful or wanted, our lives don't matter. But then again, the American government's respect for human life is better than most Western countries. Dignity might be a different story, but definitely our lives

/r/prolife /u/Dylanrules22

Using every argument the Nazis did (population control, Darwinism, calling opponents and victims "subhuman", "medical advancement" unethical means much like Mengele, etc), then turning around and calling pro-lifer arguments "Nazi-inspired" for wanting it to end legally.

Although it's worth saying most pro-abortion people simply don't think about this or are ill-informed, and aren't indoctrinated yet. When you challenge these ideas, remember this. The best thing you can do is help them realize what they are really advocating for, and many will call it into question. Either that, or they will start defending it. We live in a culture where the abortion industry can get away with anything because people feel like it's necessary no matter what the cost or how many people they hurt.

I'm disabled. I don't need someone to exploit me for money to make me believe that I'm in a genuine loving relationship. For the sake of prostitutes everywhere, I also don't want to continue others' exploitation of THEM. It's illegal for very good reasons. Plus I ain't gonna support this when it only feeds into the abortion culture we have these days. Sick.

That last one got him banned:

/r/CatholicMemes /u/Dylanrules22

7/6/2020, 3:22:09 PM

I got banned from r/worldnews when I expressed support for Poland and simpler countries restricting sexual deviancy. I was also banned from r/prochoice for correcting someone on the official pro-life stance. I was banned recently from r/aww when a lesbian couple posted their "engagement" photo to dozens of different subs looking for attention and I said "That's not what this sub is for". On Discord, it's even worse. I was banned from the C# Discord and ranted about by the owner of said server on Twitter because I explained to a few who were confused why so many people where upset about their new rainbow logo in their meta channel. It's quite sad, but a sacrifice that must be made at some point.

And finally, if none of that was enough:

/r/prochoice /u/Dylanrules2:

I mean, like they always say, one man's terrorist is another man's freedom fighter. I don't endorse terrorism, but I can understand why prolife bombers do it. Having love ones killed for no justifiable reason is a pretty big deal in our eyes. You see, we Catholics believe in personal responsibility. Rapists will have to answer to God and to those affected by their crimes. Murderers likewise will face that same responsibility.

Part one:

https://gab.com/DylanG/posts/106982016047149504 ▣ Q Dylan Green 🔒 📀 @DylanG Sep 23 · 🕉 Over a year later and I am still living in these peoples' heads rent-free for stuff I never actually said, nor things I actually believe. I've said it before and I'll say it again: If you have any actual proof of these claims, drop screenshots below. Otherwise, you're working VERY hard to defame me, and I am on the brink of legal action for harassment and defamation. I've tolerated your lies long enough, and your consistent stalking of my profiles. A handful of people report me over and over, and they find no violations due to their free speech policy, and zero targeting of anyone. Thankfully, I have been debunking them on Gab for awhile now. I see remaining public is by far the best option, since transparency puts these lies to bed. I have also never deleted a post on Gab, due to the nifty Edit button, so do check out my profile if you want to be certain. Now let's look at these juicy claims, shall we? First off, as I am absent from RIT campus for this semester (co-op), I am presently not at RIT Newman. My volunteer service position is limited to the digital sphere in the meantime. Next, the only thing they get right (sort of). There is a strong connection between past trauma and being LGBT, and I stand by that. It doesn't even have to be full-blown assault. I've made my stance clear when you ask me: It's more of a symptom of a much bigger problem. Psychologists have talked about this on the downlow, given science is considered offensive to these movements. Despite their evil cause, and their religion being not mine, the Taliban did something based: It banned abortion and euthanasia (although the last one is a bit ironic, given they seem to not be pro-life later in life). Regardless, a broken clock is right twice a day. It just makes you question just what the Americans were fighting for, when we can't even get THAT issue right. Now for the really bizzaro claim: I had to really think about where their "Jews eat babies" claim came from. I didn't ever make such a claim at any point. My only interaction that came close was an instance where a Jew at RIT claimed that abortion was a religious and ceremonial obligation in Judaism. That made me want to vomit, but it's a common argument among Agnostic Jews that I hear in the media, but not actual religious ones that I am friends with online. I called the prospect horrific, wrong, and evil. That's apparently enough for them to call me antisemetic and that I apparently believe the conspiracy theory they pushed. How is this better than the Taliban? Anyway, if any more new claims come my way, I will make sure to explain the actual truth, and not the hysteria they make me into. At least they are advertising for my Gab account. Figure 22: The Rant Unforetunately we were unable to locate the blog post in question.

Now What?

As our time together comes to an end, we ask this of you - as you fall asleep, remember that you share RIT with this gentleman. Remember that he is vice-president of the Newman center, RIT's catholic community. Remember that as a student leader, he represents RIT and you to the world.

May these thoughts fill you with whatever emotion you deem fit.

And finally, certainly don't share this document - it could be damaging to Dylan's image.
